DETAILED ACTION

The 1449 form filed on 6-3-2002 has been received and considered. Some of the references listed on the 1449 form had been listed in an earlier filed 1449 form and therefore, these references have been lined through so as to avoid any printing problem when the application goes to issue in the future.

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 4 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The claimed electronic control circuit for synchronizing the motion of the first and second grippers with the rotation of cylinders of the rotary printing press in claims 4 and 5 does not find proper support in the original disclosure and there is no description in the specification as to what structural arrangement is required and how each of the structural components function to achieve the intended outcome.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2, 3, 6, 7, 10-17 and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kruger et al(6,240,843) in view of Spiess(53,576). The '843 patent teaches the method and structure of a rotary printing machine including the sheet transport system as claimed except that the grippers are engaging the front edge of the sheet. See Figs. 1-6 in Kruger et al for details.

The patent to Spiess teaches in a sheet handling system the conventionality of using grippers b1 and b2 to engage the side edges of the sheet being transported. See Figs. 1-6 in Spiess for example. The grippers b1 and b2 are shown as being mechanically decoupled from each other as recited. In view of the teaching of Spiess, it would have been obvious to those having ordinary skill in the art to provide the sheet transport system of Kruger et al with the grippers to engage the side edges of the sheet such that the grippers will not become a hindrance to the processing components in the sheet transport path.

Claims 8, 9, 18 and 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kruger et al in view of Spiess as applied to claims 14 and 15 above, and further in view of DE 4,302,125. The applied prior art may not use the same type of grippers to engage the side edges of the sheet. DE 4,302,125 teaches in a sheet transport system the same type of grippers to engage the side edges of the sheet during transport. See the entire DE patent for example. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to provide the sheet transport system of the applied prior art with a well known type of grippers to engage the side edges of the sheet in order to ensure the quality of sheet transport.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO

Art Unit: 2854

MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
